Prewoven (Sheet/Mesh/Machine) Cane - Used on chairs where the cane is pressed into a groove. A spline chisel is used to remove the old material, the new cane is gently driven into the groove with wedges, trimmed with a utility knife and wood-workers' glue is applied before the new spline is tapped into place.

Prewoven cane is handwoven & strands of cane are pieced together, some imperfections will appear in the weaving. After soaking, repairs can be made with small pieces from the edges & secured with white glue.

Finger Protection Tools

Needle Grabbers™/Guard - Needle Grabbers™ are worn on the pad or ball of your index finger and/or thumb, above the first joint. They are made of fine quality latex rubber, and are thick and durable. When a coil is very hard, it can be difficult to get the needle through the coil. The Needle Grabber™ allows needle and binder to pull through the coil with much more ease, without the lost time of putting down the needle and picking up needle-nosed pliers. No choice of color. Also works great as a protective sheath for those areas of the fingers that get rubbed raw by reed, rush or cane while weaving round reed baskets, rush or hand cane seats, etc. Grabbers can be stretched (to be made larger) by leaving them wrapped around a group of pencils or other objects slightly larger than your finger.
